LEARN MANY THINGS FROM CANADA

Kurnia Ramadhani or familiarly called Dhani is an alumna of Universitas Airlangga Faculty of Public Health (FKM) graduated in 2009. Dhani is currently a Section Head of Health and Nursing Services at Tongas General Hospital, Probolinggo. Even so, her desire to learn does not just stop. Dhani continues to develop her competence abroad.

In September 2016, Dhani attended a short course titled Local Economic Development at Hague Academy for Local Governance, the Netherlands. At that time she was still working at Waluyo Jati General Hospital, Probolinggo. During the short course Dhani focused more on the development of moringa or what we commonly known as Moringa leaves.

While being a Section Head of Health and Nursing Services at Tongas General Hospital, she keeps striving to improve her leadership skills. One of the efforts that Dhani did was to take part in a leadership program entitled Global Change Leaders at Coady Institute, St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish City, Nova Scotia, Canada, from May to June 2018.

“The program focused more on women leadership so that all participants were women,” said Dhani.

As many as 25 selected participants from 22 countries in the world participated in the program. Not only taught about leadership matters, Dhani also learned about concern for climate change, the principles of good governance and other general matters. In addition to studying in the classroom, during the program Dhani was invited to visit the women’s resource center of the province and the women’s resource center of the city. (*)
